Recommended Read

The Boy with Big Decisions
by Helen Rutter

Fred's parents make every decision, from which snacks to eat to which secondary school to go to. When they pick a high-pressure school for him, Fred begins to wonder whether he should start taking control of his own life. After this point, many big decisions await Fred and you will move him through the story: helping him stand up for what he believes in, learn what he truly loves and choose to swerve or dive into drama. A funny, moving, exciting story where YOU are in charge!

National Writing Day - Wednesday 25 June

National writing day is an annual celebration of the power of writing creatively, inspiring people of all ages and abilities to try writing for fun and self-expression. This occasion provides a great opportunity to celebrate the reasons why young people write - including creativity, mental wellbeing, and social action or connection - and to encourage everyone to find their own writing motivation and voice.

Writing is a lifelong skill empowering communication and self-expression. It is crucial to children and young people's development as it enhances self-confidence and critical thinking skills, but also encourages creativity. So why not pick up a pen and find a notebook and get scribbling, writing down your thoughts, feelings or creating a poem, story or song!

Library Reading Challenge - last chance!

It's your last chance to claim a pin badge for your reading prowess by finishing your reading challenge book mark! I have given out over 35 badges to keen readers across the school, don't miss out and make sure you can get one too!

The library is open at break, lunch and after school until 4:30pm Mon - Thurs, 4pm on Friday
